

April 11, 2016

English Hills, Ginza
Tokyo, Japan

New experience nurtures your potentiality in future.

Toshiyuki Namai

The two different concepts, 1) “nature” and 2) “nurture” valuably give you an important question to seriously think about your potentiality in future.

No explanation is necessary to tell you that “where you were born” is a matter of nature. This is the very fact nobody can change.

Accordingly, you really need to have valuable and meaningful nurture in a process to live for your sake. In other words, you are guided to develop yourself culturally day after day.

I tell you now, “nurture yourself every day every night.” It is obviously true that whether you nurture yourself or not remarkably changes the quality of life.

How you take action today changes your future. There is no scenario written yet. Who writes scenario for you to take action? Nobody writes anything at all. You are a person who writes an original scenario for your future.

Everything related to the quality of your life depends upon how you nurture yourself by inches.

Needless to say, nobody changes your life at all. You are a person who changes the quality and direction of life in the whole of your life.

New experience nurtures your potentiality in future. Hence, I'd like you to experience what you really need for your fruitful progress every day.

Aren't you spiritually thirsty? I'd like you to water yourself. I'd like you to nurture yourself for your future potentiality.

Nurture or nature? This is not a difficult question at all. What you need is you nurture yourself through getting rid of stereotypes continuously.

Time flies. It is a wise idea to breathe deeply in your heart momentarily. You don't have any second not to nurture yourself.