

May 11, 2016

English Hills, Ginza
Tokyo, Japan

Solid or breathable

Guide to build the foundation of genuine knowledge for the sake of cultured bilingualism

Toshiyuki Namai

[Introduction]

The following systematically and minutely guides you to develop what is called “rational imagination” for the sake of realization of your cultured bilingualism in future.

As for this study, you really need some sort of “poetic talent” to imagine this material written below to some extent. Now, you are guided to build the foundation of genuine knowledge for your future bilingualism through the experience of this study.

Building the foundation of genuine knowledge shall be performing as the first step to develop the primary stage for the sake of your culture you absolutely need for bilingualism in English and Japanese in future.

Solid or breathable

imagine now

knowledge rejects knowledge that is to say, tasteless knowledge certainly repels other tasteless knowledge this is a matter people in general don't recognize at all essentially, there are two kinds of knowledge the one is "solid knowledge" the other is "breathable knowledge" solid knowledge is "quite solid and tight" between one piece and another piece of knowledge there is nothing cultural to taste deliciously between the two there breathable knowledge is "spacious enough" to taste something cultural and you are guided to associate one piece of knowledge with another piece of knowledge in the whole sphere of knowledge which is spaciouly breathable breathable knowledge is "gracefully breathable" between one piece and another piece of knowledge

I'd like you to meaningfully breathe the air in the immense sphere of rationality genuine knowledge is beautifully developed through breathing such rational air it shall be minutely organized by inches until the last day to breathe your last breath

solid or breathable

Now, you are all set to choose the one from the two, solid or breathable without a shadow of a doubt